Head Coach Dan Quinn

On if RB Jacory Croskey-Merritt will play on Monday:
“He had a really good week, so we'll finish up the last part of the process tonight and tomorrow but certainly trending everything in the right way. He threw a great week.”

On if there are injury updates on CB Amik Robertson and RB Rachaad White:
“So, yeah [for Amik’s injury it happened] on the last play of the day [yesterday], so it was sore today, so we held [him] out. I'll monitor over the next, you know, 48 hours. And the other person that you asked? Rachaad, he had soreness in his heel, and so we held him out today in hopes that that would just make him feel better going into Monday. So just less pounding on it. He was able to do some of the stuff, and then as it was sore, we just made the decision to hold him some yesterday.”

On if White was able to participate in practice today:
“No.”

On if he thinks White has a shot to play on Monday:
“Yes. More today, like, let's get him feeling good.”

On whom would step up if Robertson were not able to play on Monday night:
“If he can't, it'd be a combination of [CB Rasul] Sul [Douglas] and then [CB] Mike [Sainristil] and [CB Fabian] Fabe [Moreau] more on the inside spot.”

On K Drew Stevens’ performance thus far this season:
“There's a lot that I like of what I've seen so far and he's got an excellent battery to work with in terms of [P] Tress [Way] and [LS] Tyler [Ott]. What's interesting for, I'm sure for him and for a lot of the kickers coming out of college is like they crush it, to hit it out of the end zone all the time. And that's a different one, like a different shot to hit it, keep it in balance. We like covering kicks. So, I'm seeing him improving in that way too, where it's trying to put it down, not in the end zone, but inside the five as best you can. But he's got a strong leg. Got a lot of confidence in him. And the kickoff now that over the last two years where it's increased so much, having that touch of what to do and how to do it is a big part of it as well. So, I like how he's developing.”

On if his confidence in Stevens’ ability to perform from different spots on the field has changed throughout the season:
“It did. I felt pretty strong early, like I've given him some 50 yarders right off the bat. When we were starting the season, I was hoping that wasn't gonna be like the opening kick of the game, but sometimes that's just how it is. I like that he's kicked outdoors. I like that he's been in that spot where he's not relying on weather in that way. So certainly, he's prepared for that. But I do like the development that he's made. I always feel his strength kicking at practice and the distance. And then in the warmups, that was good. Instead of hustling, they waited till after the team was last week in the rain. I don't know if you guys were outside still, but hitting those in the rain to know like, 'Okay, man, this guy's ready for the challenge.'"

On WR Treylon Burks' foot injury and on if he is good to play Monday night:
"It is. He is good. And I think we're close. And so, what we did was kind of the on, off to let it heal. So it was like – I'm getting all my days screwed up this week, but early part, Wednesday, Thursday off, the next one on. So that's how we scheduled. So, he's getting a lot of speed even before we had the full practice on our Wednesday. So, he's doing good. And hopefully we'll get back into a regular cadence as early as next week or the week after."

On if Burks' foot injury was a pain tolerance issue:
"Yeah, but it's doing a lot better. And so, the medical staff and he has really managed it in a strong way. It was very difficult for him to miss, and so that was hard. But knowing that at that point, he was not able to be him. And so, in the last game, seeing him speed and going, those are the things that we need to see in practice as I'm seeing it this week."

On going no-huddle shotgun against the New York Giants in the first quarter and on why they didn't continue to do it throughout the game:
"Good on both. We did make that decision just to have that as part of the game plan to say this would be something we think that we wanted to get to, to move quickly. And so, we'll have that available in the games moving forward when we wanna choose to use it. But I do think it's a weapon worth doing. Sometimes it's even by a personnel group just to stay in this group to get going. And so having, I don't know how to say this, more guys just, I felt like the last couple weeks we found a better rhythm of people not in and out. And so, I think that plays into it too, to [say] 'Hey, stay in this group and get them going for a while.'"

On who is likely going to start at center on Monday:
"[C/G] Lucas [Patrick]. Yep [that's the plan]. Yeah, [C/G] Nick [Allegretti], I was pleased with what we saw but [the plan is that] Lucas will be up for the game."

On if WR Luke McCaffrey's out-of-bounds play versus the New York Giants was something they had practiced:
"Definitely, I would say more covered. This is all the credit to Luke on that one. [Assistant Wide Receivers/Returners Coach] Andre [Coleman] works closely with those guys, so what we do during each week is you go around the league, looking at some things that could have been some things that came up that in other games that could have been taught to teach on. So that oftentimes takes place during there. So, it's one that we've practiced, but not irregular. Sometimes there's like, hey, once a quarter you hit this again, but I thought he nailed that flawlessly. It's a really difficult one to be in because as the ball's hitting and there's people coming to know, 'Okay, I'm waiting for it to go.' So, I thought it showed some definite upper level. That's his credit for sure."

On if Patrick likely starting at center is the only change for the offensive line:
"Yes."
